AMERICAN CARDINAL SAILS ON TUESDAY TO JOIN CONCLAVE

Speculation Rife in Rome as to Who Will be Named Successor to Benedict

ROME.—(By the Associated Press.)—The meeting of the Sacred college in conclave to elect a successor to the late Pope Benedict will open February 1 or February 2, it was stated Monday.

While all the cardinals resident in Europe are expected to reach Rome in time for the conclave, it is considered doubtful whether the American cardinals will find it possible to be present, at least for the opening of the session as the date set is barely ten days away.

Cardinals Maffi, La Fontaine and Ratti of Pisa, Venice and Milan, respectively, are the most prominently mentioned in various circles today as the most likely candidates for the position as successor to Benedict. In these circles, Cardinal Maffi apparently is a pronounced favorite even of these three favorites.

O'Connell Sails Tuesday

BOSTON, Mass.—Plans for Cardinal O'Connell's voyage to Rome to participate in the election of a successor to Pope Benedict were announced Monday. With his official party, consisting of Mr. M. J. Spillane, the Rev. R. J. Hahnel, chancellor, and Dr. J. R. Slattery, a layman, the cardinal will sail Tuesday from New York, for Naples on the steamer President Wilson. He will have only eight days to reach Rome before the conclave opens, but will be admitted upon his arrival if the new pontiff has not been chosen. Cardinal Dougherty is in the West Indies.

Body Lies in State

ROME.—(By the Associated Press.)—In the basilica of St. Peter's, the body of Pope Benedict XV lay in state Monday while vast throngs passed reverently before the catafalque.

Early in the day all that was mortal of the late pontiff, whose death in the early hours of Sunday plunged the church throughout the world into deepest mourning, was taken from the throne room of the vatican, where it had been placed on Sunday shortly after his death, solemnly carried to St. Peter's, attended by a solemn procession of cardinals, priests, members of the diplomatic corps and dignitaries of the vatican, and placed on the catafalque, surrounded by velvet cushions.

Public is Admitted

Word was given that the public of Rome would be admitted to St. Peter's up to 11 o'clock and immense crowds immediately began entering the edifice and filing by the body.

The body is clothed in white with stole and chasuble of red, embroidered.

YOUNG STOCK CO. WON'T PLAY HERE; FILMS AT RIVIERA

Leading Actors Quit Troupe at Wausau; Picture Program all Week

The Earl Young Stock company looked to play at the Riviera theater all week, starting today, but will be unable to appear as advertised.

Instead of the stock company, Manager A. J. Cooper will present Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese film actor, in "Where Lights Are Low," on Monday and Tuesday. Pictures also will be shown the rest of the week.

Mr. Young's entire outfit, 42 trunks and crates and a carload of scenery, was destroyed by fire when the opera house at Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., burned Friday, January 12. Nothing was saved except the clothes actors were wearing.

The Elks, Knights of Columbus and other organizations rallied to their assistance, raising about $500. The show played at Wausau all last week, operating on the co-operative plan with borrowed costumes, clothes and dresses, the Elks of Wausau also staging a benefit to help the actors.

After the Sunday night performance at Wausau two of the principal actors, Robert Sherman and Ward McMonagh, getting their share of the co-operative plan receipts, boarded the midnight train and left, consequently Mr. Young notified Manager Cooper of the Riviera it would be impossible to give a performance here.

GLORIA SWANSON—RIVOLI
Dealing with subtle human emotions in a characteristic manner, Elinor Glyn's original picture written by her for Paramount, in which Gloria Swanson makes her debut as a star, "The Great Moment" was shown with no inconsiderable success at the Rivoli theater Sunday.

"The Great Moment" deals with the love trials of Nadine Polham, a young girl, portrayed by Miss Swanson, and Raymond Delaval, a mining engineer, played by Milton Sills. There are several intensely dramatic situations, all of which are artistically handled by the star and her supporting players. The picture, directed by Sam Wood, has a majesty all its own and its beauty is as undeniable as its appeal is irresistible. That it was fully appreciated by the audience, its flattering reception amply indicated.

The genuineness of the scenes depicting a Russian ball in "The Great Moment," and the accuracy of detail, such as in the settings, costumes of the players, and investing, were greatly enhanced by the aid of Michael Kustoff, an ex-staff captain of the Imperial Russian army, who provided much valuable data regarding such an affair, besides loaning several of his military uniforms, trappings and weapons, in which he had seen actual service in Russia and Siberia.

PINERO PLAY AT MAJESTIC
In bringing a screen version of Arthur Wing Pinero's drama, "The

"Profligate" to the screen under the title of "The Truth About Husbands," Whitman Bennett has taken a step which confutes those who say all screen plays are bromides. It was shown at the Majestic for the first time today.

Pinero has an international reputation as a playwright and "The Truth About Husbands," or "Profligate" as it was called in the stage version, has always been regarded as one of his most brilliant society dramas.

The action of "The Truth About Husbands" is swift, the plot well balanced and the suspense breathless. The titles containing some of the dialogue written by Pinero are brilliant. The play is handsomely mounted and the photography clear.

BILL FAIRBANKS—CASINO

Miss Estelle Harrison, the young lady who plays opposite Mr. Fairbanks in "Fighting Hearts," the big outdoor romance of love and adventure on the Texas-Mexican border, showing at the Casino today and Tuesday was called upon to take her life in her own hands by riding a runaway horse without having any reins, and had it not been for the wonderful horsemanship of this little lady, she would have been instantly killed, as the horse stepped in a badger hole on the range, and fell with her, rolling down high embankment. However, this accident got out of the camera, but immediately afterwards this game young lady did a scene that

"QUO VADIS"—STRAND

History, romance and tragedy are blended into an awe-inspiring and thrilling spectacle in George Kleine's gigantic photodramatic production of Henryk Sienkiewicz's celebrated novel "Quo Vadis at the Strand. "Quo Vadis" is accredited by all who have seen it, with being the most marvelous motion picture spectacle of the century.

It has created a sensation wherever it has been shown. For scope, magnitude, extravagant splendor, realism, thrills and sensation, it is said the picture has never been equaled.

The beautiful love story of the pagan Vintius, for the Christian girl, Lygia, is related with remarkable fidelity, and the companion love story of Petronius and Eunice, his slave, is also faithfully shown.

The trials of the early Christians, the vain and cruel temperment of the wicked tyrant Nero and his courtiers, which were so graphically drawn by the author, are illustrated on the screen with remarkable veracity.

The burning of Rome, the marvelous feats of the pleasure-loving Nero, the combats of the gladiators, the devouring of the Christians by a mad, cruel Nero, the stirring conquest of an infuriated bull with a woman tied to its back by the barbarian Ursus, the gathering of the Christians in the catacombs, and the appearance of the Savior to St. Peter, are all shown with wonderful truth of detail and form a spectacle so stupendous no one should miss the opportunity to see it.

The Skeleton Key

LIFE is so full of false platitudes about how to become successful, it is a wonder that any one ever manages to succeed at all. We take a rising generation, to whom life is a curtailed mystery, and befuddle them with wrong directions for reaching success, then wonder why the average person ends life about three months removed from the bread line. The young man, going into the world, has an inflated idea of the possibilities of success. He has had drilled into him the false notion that every boy can become president, that the top of the ladder is big enough to hold every one, that every man is a potential John D. Rockefeller if he learns the system and follows cut-and-dried rules. Yet all grown-ups eventually know that these are fallacies—that many of our greatest successes are creatures of chance. Why not be honest with ourselves and admit this, also let the young into the secret instead of misguiding them?

The young man is told to "work hard." Yet hard work often leads to failure. It all depends on what the hard work is applied to. A Hercules could work himself to death, making five poker-ers out of wax. But his efforts would be neither useful to society nor profitable to himself. Misdirected energy. What the young man needs, first of all, is to find the work to which he is best suited. And then to use his brain. Try to devise a way of doing the old thing more quickly and economically. For instance, the humble maker of shoelaces could become a millionaire by inventing and marketing a shoelace with a metal tip that wouldn't keep slipping off.

The man who watches the clock is universally condemned. Yet the man who is speeding his work, trying to cram more productive effort into a set time, has to watch the clock. An efficiency expert, lecturing junior clerks, said, "As I came into the room, I saw the secret of success on the door. What was it?" He expected to hear, "Push." A wise boy said, "Pull." In a sense, the wise boy was right. The platitudes tell us that pull doesn't count. But we all know that cultivation of influential friends often is a short-cut to success. The greatest lesson that can be learned by the young man, just striking out for himself, is that this is an age of specialization and that the average man must find his life-field and start training in it before he is 25. Many of the platitudes that held good a generation ago have been vetoed by modern life with its automatic machines, spurred efficiency, economical production, specialization and conservation of energy.

The Mossback Danger

WESTINGHOUSE wireless operators estimate that several hundred thousand persons heard a sermon sent out by radiophone. The preacher was the Rev. Dr. Charles Lee Reynolds, Park Presbyterian church, Newark, N. J. After preaching twenty minutes, Rev. Mr. Reynolds said to his invisible audience: "At this point in my service I would take up a collection. But I don't see how I can ask my radio congregation to give an offering. And I can't ask you to join in singing a hymn." In a short time, wireless sending outfits will be as common as wireless receiving stations. Before Rev. Mr. Reynolds is many years older, he may hear an invisible congregation of wireless telephone operators answer him with a hymn sung by several million voices.

Trains on Henry Ford's railroad, the D., T. & I., soon will be "dispatched" by wireless. No telegraph wires to blow down, during a blizzard, balling up the service and imperiling life. Tens of thousands of farmers are getting, every night, the weather forecasts, crop reports and market quotations sent out by wireless telephone by Department of Agriculture. Twice a month, Uncle Sam's public health service broadcasts a wireless telephone health lecture. The amateur wireless operator regularly hears grand opera, instrumental concerts and college glee clubs. Andreas Dippel, veteran opera conductor, arranges to take grand opera stars to every part of America by vaudeville circuit system. He'd better move fast, for at least seven out of ten Americans soon will be hearing the best opera singers in the world by wireless phone. Who'll pay them? New arrangements must be made.

A startling feature of the suddenly-arrived wireless telephone is that the majority of its followers are boys in knee pants. Into a store selling wireless outfits and you'll find six boys to every adult among the customers. The youngsters caught the idea in a flash and are "going to it." Meantime, the grown-ups are snoring away, with no definite idea what this "wireless business" is all about. Adult America will shortly be a mossback, if it doesn't waken. The youngsters are experimenting with wireless wizardry while the rest of us ride in stage coaches.

Permanent Study

A RICH uncle left a will, providing for William Cullen Bryant Kemp as long as he was "a regularly enrolled student." So, for forty-one years, Kemp has been a student at Columbia University. He is sixty years old. Some will say, "Lucky Dog!" Wiser ones will comment that Kemp has barely delved into the possibilities of education. To learn everything that other men have found out and recorded, would take millions of years. The individual student is like one field-mouse trying to devour the whole wheat crop.

Coming

THE plan for the St. Lawrence canal, which would make ocean ports of Great Lakes cities, is submitted to congress. The cost would be $315,000,000, which seems a lot, though it would vanish like snow on a hot stove in a few days of modern war. In another century, America will have a network of such canals, linked up with thousands of giant dams. Our greatest natural resource is water, running back to sea, seeking its own level. That power will not forever be allowed to go to waste.

Alone

IS the ex-kaiser planning to marry again? His choice is said to be the widow of a German colonel killed during the war. She was such an intimate friend of the Hohenzollerns in the old days that she was given charge of the empress's jewels on the eve of the flight to Holland. The rumor about Bill's possible remarriage says that he is lonely. Sounds logical. Few people would care to exchange places with him and be alone with his thoughts.

Killed

ONE person was killed every thirty-five minutes in auto accidents during 1921. The total for the year "probably was as high as 15,000." This is the estimate by the national safety council. Considerable toll for carelessness, which is just another word for recklessness. For practically every auto accident is preventable. Paste that on your windshield, if inclined to take chances.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY
William A. Sutor died of heart failure at the family residence, 1105 King street, early this morning. Mr. Sutor was a pioneer citizen and one of La Crosse's best known businessmen. Mr. Sutor was once connected with the banking business here but later became interested in the Mississippi Towing company of which he became secretary. Later he became manager of the Waterfront Coal Co., and held this position until the time of his death. Mr. Sutor was born in Maldenham County, Canada, in 1842. He came to La Crosse in 1862.

Ernest Russa, Bangor, was elected president of the Upper Mississippi Valley Brewmasters' association at their annual meeting at Hotel Doering yesterday. The annual Burns celebration will be held at Galesville Thursday evening when a festival and ball will be given in honor of the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns.

Superintendent Benetz of the La Crosse schools received word this morning that two graduates of the La Crosse high school had won a place on the Dartmouth university debating team. The boys are Edward Mahle and Sigwald Stavrum.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY
Rev. A. C. McCarty of the English Lutheran church will not resign his pastorate here as he announced. He received a call from the Trenton, N. J., Church of the Saviour, a few days ago and decided to accept it. His parishioners here got together however and offered him an increase in salary and persuaded him to remain here.

Within the last few days nearly one hundred land-seekers passed through the city enroute to new homes in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Pupils of the Tenth ward school are trying to build a skating rink on the vacant lot north of the school building.

Jeff Gibbons, for years the foreman painter in the La Crosse Carriage Works, severed his connection with that institution and has taken a position with the Gate City Wagon and Carriage Works. Mr. Gibbons will have charge of the painting department in this new company.

Lumber companies which have logging camps in the woods report that lumber jacks are scarce and the men that can be hired demand high wages.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY
The La Crosse sharpshooters, a club recently organized, have been given the use of a piece of property south of the city for a shooting range and park. The privilege was granted for ten years by the John Gaud Brewing company. The next thing for the club to do now is to get permission from the city to build a range and hold shooting contests.

John Farrell was united in marriage at St. Mary's Catholic church Tuesday morning at nine o'clock to Miss Maggie Sullivan. Father Nevins performed the ceremony.

The fortieth anniversary of the organization of the Congregational church and society of La Crosse was celebrated in the church parlors at Seventh and Main streets, yesterday. The church was organized here in 1852 and has had six pastors since that date, and all the pastors are now living.

The lodge rooms of the Knights of Pythias, over Schulze's bakery on Rose street, has recently been newly papered. Gas fixtures are being put in so that suppers may be held there.

Mr. Gantert, the furniture dealer, has received some of the large and handsome curtain and flat desks for the offices in the city hall.

Some One Some Day

BY A. W. PEACH

Irma moved from the gate to the door and looked where her invalid mother was busy with her knitting. "Mother, what do you think? Uncle Tom did remember us. Here's a letter from his lawyers, saying that he left us $50,000 in cash, that the money had been forwarded to our local bank, and—well—now—"

Her mother laughed at the long sigh that followed the "now." "Now, Dark Eyes, I suppose you will want to do missionary work with it. I never liked us, but I guess he thought better of his family as he grew older. What are you going to do with it?"

Irma looked into her mother's twinkling eyes. "Well, with this and what father left us, I guess we won't worry any more; and then—then—mother dear, I'm going to give Mrs. Jameson enough to have Robby operated on, and I'm going to buy that home for old Mr. and Mrs. Peables, and—"

"Generous child, get your breath! I hope you will do happy things with what we don't need, and our needs are not luxurious. We—here comes the steward up the walk."

Irma went to meet him, a little of the happiness of her plans going from her face. Stewart was a persistent lover almost to the point of being annoying; but he was regarded in the village as a good catch for any girl, and the village had been unable to understand why Irma had not accepted him. As a matter of fact, she had been on the verge of doing so, but always the realization that she did not love him as she wanted to love some one some day held her back.

She told him the good news, but he did not seem in any sense overjoyed by the information. She guessed the reason. The son of the richest family in the village, he had made her realize what he could do for her and her mother. In dark moments that thought had tempted her—but only for moments.

"I suppose that means you will stay an old maid all your life," he said bluntly.

"There are worse things," she said quietly.

"Are you implying that being my wife might be worse?" he demanded, and quick tempered. "No, I did not mean that. As I have told you so many times, I like you, but I don't love you, and there is a whole world of difference between the two."

He left her in a huff shortly after, but her discomfort at his attitude was relieved by the thought of the good she could do with the money she and her mother did not actually need. She would make a few dreams come true, so, Mr. Peables, limping, came from work, found the deed of his home waiting for him in his wife's trembling hands. The old people went softly in each other's arms, and then went slowly down the street together to the village center. The little Jameson boy, his pale face alight with hope that he was going to be made like other boys, went with his mother to the great city. Quietly, here, and there, Irma made dreams come true; happy-hearted, she planned for others and carried the plans through.

Then out of the blue sky came the word that left her almost fainting—a letter from the western firm of lawyers, telling her to come drawing on the $50,000 that a later will had been discovered in which the money had been left to Mr. Stark Kingston, a friend of her father's; that a representative would see her about the matter.

She was at her wits' end. "What shall I do? What shall I do?" was the bitter question she faced. She had spent the money for things that could not be returned, she might take the little money in her mother's name—and that would mean poverty for them.

In desperation she told Stewart. He smiled. "Marry me, Irma, and I'll take care of the whole thing," was his solution.

She looked at him with frightened eyes, and started to offer herself, for the gateway he mentioned seemed the only one. Just as his greedy eyes were growing triumphant, the doorbell rang and Irma had to go.

At the door she found a tall, clean-cut figure and looked up, drawing her breath. "You are from Setson & Stewart," she asked fearfully.

He told her "Yes" and here to explain the situation and arrange for the return of the money. It is very unfortunate—"

Stewart was forgotten as her mind in a whirl, Irma led the tall lawyer into the cottage living room and began the terrible explanation.

ONE REEL YARNS

IN THE SHADOWS OF DUSK
"Where's Avery?" asked Mr. Holt. "Missing around in his dark room," replied Mrs. Holt. "He's always doing something in there. He spends all his time fooling with that camera of his."

"Oh, let him alone," said Mr. Holt. "He really takes good pictures. And it's a lot better to have him—"

"Look," said Avery, coming into the room just then. "This picture I made of Rex, Mrs. Holt's dog, came out fine. I caught him just right."

"That's a nice way to waste your time, taking pictures of animals," remonstrated Mrs. Holt. But Avery had gone back to his dark room, which had been used as a catch-all for mugs, old wine and odds and ends.

After a while Mrs. Holt called to him: "I'm going down town to do the shopping for Sunday. You'd better stay here. There've been some burglars in the neighborhood, and I sort of have to leave the house."

Avery answered her absent-mindedly. "I'm going down town to do the shopping for Sunday. You'd better stay here. There've been some burglars in the neighborhood, and I sort of have to leave the house."

Early dusk soon filled the dining room with quiet shadows. Then one of the shadows seemed to detach itself from the rest and move forward. It came from the direction of one of the French windows. Straight across the room it went, hesitated a moment, and then started to open a door.

There was a blinding flash. The shadow fled back across the room like a streak, and out the way it had come, leaving the window open.

"Good thing I saw him coming," said Avery, coming out of his dark room. "It's lucky, too. I had that new flashlight powder."

And when Avery developed his picture, which resulted in the arrest of the burglar, Mrs. Holt declared that he could "use the whole house for a dark room, for all of her."

"Gentle child, get your breath! I hope you will do happy things with what we don't need, and our needs are not luxurious. We—here comes the steward up the walk."

Irma went to meet him, a little of the happiness of her plans going from her face. Stewart was a persistent lover almost to the point of being annoying; but he was regarded in the village as a good catch for any girl, and the village had been unable to understand why Irma had not accepted him.

As a matter of fact, she had been on the verge of doing so, but always the realization that she did not love him as she wanted to love some one some day held her back.

She told him the good news, but he did not seem in any sense overjoyed by the information. She guessed the reason. The son of the richest family in the village, he had made her realize what he could do for her and her mother.

In dark moments that thought had tempted her—but only for moments.

"I suppose that means you will stay an old maid all your life," he said bluntly.

"There are worse things," she said quietly.

"Are you implying that being my wife might be worse?" he demanded, and quick tempered. "No, I did not mean that. As I have told you so many times, I like you, but I don't love you, and there is a whole world of difference between the two."

He left her in a huff shortly after, but her discomfort at his attitude was relieved by the thought of the good she could do with the money she and her mother did not actually need.

She would make a few dreams come true, so, Mr. Peables, limping, came from work, found the deed of his home waiting for him in his wife's trembling hands.

The old people went softly in each other's arms, and then went slowly down the street together to the village center.

The little Jameson boy, his pale face alight with hope that he was going to be made like other boys, went with his mother to the great city.

Quietly, here, and there, Irma made dreams come true; happy-hearted, she planned for others and carried the plans through.

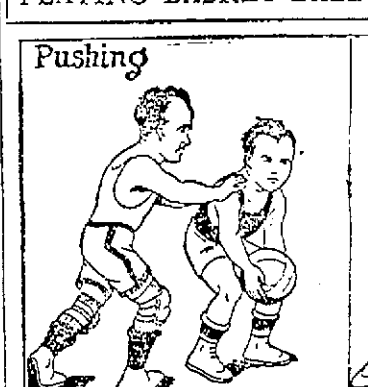

Then out of the blue sky came the word that left her almost fainting—a letter from the western firm of lawyers, telling her to come drawing on the $50,000 that a later will had been discovered in which the money had been left to Mr. Stark Kingston, a friend of her father's; that a representative would see her about the matter.

She was at her wits' end. "What shall I do? What shall I do?" was the bitter question she faced. She had spent the money for things that could not be returned, she might take the little money in her mother's name—and that would mean poverty for them.

In desperation she told Stewart. He smiled. "Marry me, Irma, and I'll take care of the whole thing," was his solution.

She looked at him with frightened eyes, and started to offer herself, for the gateway he mentioned seemed the only one. Just as his greedy eyes were growing triumphant, the doorbell rang and Irma had to go.

PLAYING BASKET BALL

By A. F. Hammesfahr
All-around Basket Ball Star. Basket Ball Chairman, Amateur Athletic Federation; Vice President Athletic Officials Association, Chicago District.

"While basket ball is principally a game for boys," says Mr. Hammesfahr, "many, many girls' teams have been organized about the country. There is a special set of rules for girls' teams. Basket ball for girls should be encouraged."

It is not an easy task for a Guard to stop the opposing Forward from scoring once the Forward gets possession of the ball. The best rule for the Guard to follow is, play the ball and intercept all throws and passes as they are made by the opponents; don't wait until your man gets ready to shoot before you try to get the ball from him.

Rarely does a Guard pass the center of the floor unless he is a "free guard," and then only when another player of his team has been instructed to take up the guarding of the man that he has left.

When the Guard is successful in breaking up a play under the opponents' basket, he becomes the pivot of the play, and he should do all he possibly can to get the ball to his half of the floor so that his teammates can score.

In doing this he must be careful not to commit a foul. Fouls are the bane of the Guard. It is so easy to accidentally shove or take hold of another player. The rules forbid this personal contact. So the Guard must learn to attack his man by scrumming on the ball. He must be nimble enough to avoid bumping and charging his opponent.

All exercises are valuable for a Guard. Stopping exercises, body bands and

WORLD IS POORER BY POPE'S DEATH, SAYS FR. KREMER

Late Pontiff Labored Unceasingly to Avert War, then Aided in Peace Plans

GENOA, Wis.—Pope Benedict yielded his soul into the hands of his Creator Sunday," said Monsignor A. M. Kremer, of Genoa, vicar general of the La Crosse diocese on Monday morning. "The church stands aghast at this enormous and shockingly sudden loss. The father of Christianity is dead. The world so sadly in need of compassion, help and love has lost its teacher and exemplar of the charity of Jesus Christ. The government of the world have lost their noblest, their wisest and their most unselfish counselor. The poor in all countries have lost their friend and their father. All mankind is immeasurably poorer since Benedict died."

"As head of the church, the late pope continued and perfected the work of his earthly predecessor, Pius X. The codification of canon law will make his name illustrious in all ages to come. As the first sovereign of the world called upon the chair of Peter when the world was drunk with blood and stepped in gore, he raised his fatherly voice and called upon the warring nations to lay down their arms and meet in peaceful councils to settle their difficulties amicably. Unfortunately for the world the governments would not listen; the roar of the voice of hell was too loud in the hearts of men as well as on the battlefields."

"When Benedict could not stop the war he used all resources at his command to alleviate the sufferings it caused, exchanging prisoners, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, consoling the weeping in every land without distinction of race, color or creed were his daily care. When at last the exhausted nations sank to the ground Benedict once more appealed to the governments and showed the way to lasting peace. Whatever is found in any of the peace treaties that is of real value the pope had thought out and advised. Whatever is laid in them he had deprecated beforehand and advised against it, still never ceasing during all these years to give and to help everywhere in his wide dominion."

"The busy life is closed. The halls of the Vatican are desolate but the memory of Benedict Fifteenth will live as long as there is room for gratitude in the hearts of men. May his noble soul rest in peace."

COBBLER APPROVES STATE SUIT AGAINST LEATHER COMPANIES

Milwaukee Man Informs Morgan He is Ready to Testify in Court

MADISON, Wis.—The effect of anti-trust suits started against the Wisconsin Leather and Shoe Finders' association by the state, is shown, Attorney general is in Milwaukee in connection with his anti-trust litigation.

"I read of your 'trust busting suit' against the so-called Wisconsin Leather and Shoe Finders' association. I have been awaiting an exposure of this kind for many months past. In fact I am more than surprised to see that the so-called trust existed so long as they did."

"I am nothing more than a poor hardworking shoemaker who was forced to suffer at the hands of this organization for almost two years."

"They combined and conspired in such a way as to keep prices in leather findings, rubber heels, etc. at a standard price, which was strictly carried out by each and every member of the association."

"I am anxious to testify against the above organization at any time I may be called on to do so, and I have sufficient facts in my possession to help a conviction."

Mr. Morgan said that similar letters have been received in connection with anti-trust suits which he has commenced.

BERLIN UNEMPLOYED ASK MEN WITH JOBS TO SHARE THE WORK

Demand Division of Work and Larger Allowance from City and Union

BERLIN.—The unemployed throughout Germany are demanding a division of work with the regularly employed and a larger allowance from the municipalities and the labor unions.

They have become so insistent and demonstrations and clashes between the employed and the jobless so frequent that representatives of the central government, the labor organizations, and the municipalities are trying to find a method of dealing with the situation.

Political agitators have taken advantage of the situation to urge a "red revolt" against employers. This attitude of the radicals has caused sharp disfavor even among the ranks of labor.

Labor leaders charge that many of the "unemployed" are not members of labor unions, are not really out of work, and if they were, would seek to avoid work. They attempt to compel employers who have jobs to quit in favor of the unemployed.

The government is planning the establishment of employment bureaus throughout the country, while the municipalities and the labor councils are canvassing the industries in the hope that jobs may be found for all.

The German Housewives league is trying to aid unemployed married men by placing their wives in positions to earn a little money "when not engaged in housework."

Low earning power of workmen and high prices has popularized the movement among women to share the responsibility of supporting the family.

MILWAUKEE SEES NO RELIEF FROM COLD WAVE TILL TUESDAY

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—No relief before Tuesday from the cold wave which has held Milwaukee in its grip since Saturday night is seen by Forecaster W. P. Stewart. Mr. Stewart said that the temperature would not rise much Monday and that during the night it would drop to about six below. Tuesday there will be a gradual rise, he said.

The lowest temperature during the cold wave was 7 below, which was reached at ten a. m. Monday and duplicated at 8 a. m. Tuesday. This was the lowest temperature recorded in Milwaukee in two years.

FISHERMAN AND WIFE CAUGHT IN BOAT ON LAKE; WOMAN DIES

FORT WING, Wis.—Carried out into the ice-coated waters of Lake Superior late Saturday when a severe gale sprang up, Alfred Peterson, a fisherman of Knife River, Minn., reached here Sunday night after his wife had perished in the open rowboat. Mrs. Peterson died at 10 a. m. Sunday, according to Peterson's story.

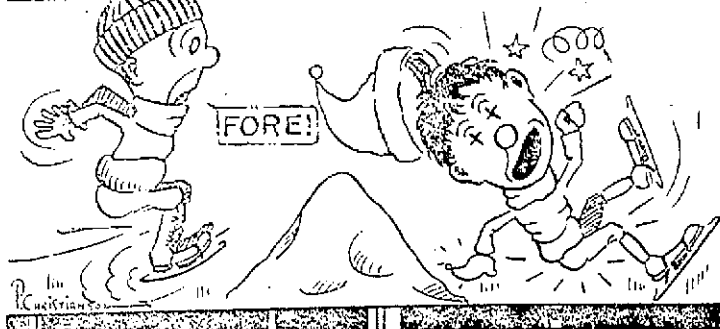

His legs and arms frozen, Peterson, towing the body of his wife in the ice-locked boat, crawled from one break to another until he reached the south shore of the lake, 1 1/2 miles east of here, at six p. m. Sunday, 25 hours after he lost control of his boat.

LET'S PLAY

Garbed in handsome, warm costumes and fired by true carnival spirit, a large delegation of carnival boosters left at 8:45 Monday morning in a special train on a trip over the La Crosse and Southeastern road, despite a below zero temperature, standing twenty minutes at all stations as far as Westly, three-quarters of an hour at that place and two hours at Virgona, the carnival boosters carried the tidings of La Crosse's second big mid-winter festival to thousands of people today. Headed by Diering's drum corps the carnival workers marched through the streets of each village and advertised the festival with various noise producing devices, inviting all of Vernon county to come and play with us Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The excursionists will arrive home late this afternoon.

The La Crosse Rubber Mills Carnival club is being drilled in marching formations by Raymond Zooker, one-time top sergeant in the army in the World war, and the entire organization is rapidly getting in the crack drill-squad class.

Saturday night and Sunday saw the downtown district fairly alive with carnival costumes. Nearly every marching club was represented in the "loop" crowds.

Walter Goodinger has composed a nifty carnival song entitled "Let's Play," which is being sung at the Revolt theater at every performance. The words follow: "Let's play! Let's play! That's what the little buttons say. Let's pack our troubles in some old kit bag. And boost the carnival; don't let us lag. Don't frown, don't frown; Just smile your troubles upside down. Let's cheer, cheer; the gang's all here. Hurrah! Hurrah! Let's play!"

The Carnival committee is trying to devise ways and means of transporting people to and from the ski tournament to be held at the big ski slide on the bluff just south of Stone road and opposite the Hyde and Park farm on Friday, January 27th at 2:30 p. m. and which will probably last about an hour and a half. The committee is particularly anxious to take care of any strangers in the city who may want to witness this performance. An appeal is therefore made to owners of motor vehicles of any description to place all they can spare at the disposal of the Carnival committee, and the committee therefore requests every one desiring to assist in taking care of this situation to notify the committee at headquarters, old Security bank building, North Fourth street, phone 84, or day lines and wishing to engage in this service at a reasonable fare for the trip will not require a license.

BODY OF POPE LIES IN STATE AT ST. PETER'S

erred with gold. The head, wearing the pontifical mitre, reposes upon cushions of red and gold velvet. The hands wearing the pontifical gloves and holding the rosary, are clasped over the breast.

The body, as it was solemnly brought into St. Peter's was borne upon a red covered bier by ushers clad in medieval costumes of scarlet. The procession was headed by the gendarmes of the Vatican, the pontifical police with their elaborate uniforms of blue and white, walking with drawn swords. Following them were the Palatine guards in dark blue uniforms and plumes of black feathers standing erect.

Cardinals in Line
Of the cardinals in the processional Cardinal Gaspari alone, was dressed in full black. Cardinals Preburch and Bogazzi stood out in the distinction of their white robes while the remainder of the cardinals wore the black of a number of the Italian cardinals, wore the red of their rank.

All moved with bowed heads, reciting their prayers and proceeding at a slow pace, their faces grave with the solemnity of the occasion.

Cardinals flanked the members of the sacred college. Then came the members of the diplomatic corps in black mourning attire. The bishops and monsignori numbering some 200, fell in behind the long line and solemn file.

Stately Pomp for Funeral
Already every one is recalling the ceremonies of stately pomp, of which the dead pontiff now will be the center during the next few days, beginning with the gathering of the cardinals in the death chamber. They will call the silent figure three times by his Christian name before pronouncing him officially dead.

This will be followed by the historic ceremony of removing the fisherman's ring, which will be drawn off the pope's fingers by Cardinal Gaspari, who will destroy it, and have it reset for Benedict's successor. Then follow the elaborate preparations for the embalmment of the body and for three days' economy, during which the body will lie in state in St. Peter's chapel before burial.

Speculate as to New Pope
Speculation already is rife concerning a successor. Cardinal Gaspari is among those most prominently mentioned, although the election of a papal secretary of state is almost without precedent.

The college of cardinals is understood to be divided into two fairly equal groups on the subject of Pope Benedict's successor. The two groups represent those who wish the next pope to come from outside of Italy and those who think he should be a native of the country. At present the latter group appears to be in the ascendancy, although certain members of the Sacred college show a strong liking for Cardinal Merry del Val, a native of Spain, and do not hide their sympathies for that choice.

Among the native Italians, Cardinal Maafi of Pisa is the most strongly supported in Italian centers, by his advanced modern ideas are likely to arouse opposition, particularly from the group headed by Cardinal Merry del Val. A leading figure in this group is Cardinal de Lai.

It is considered possible that because of these two opposing groups Cardinal Gaspari may be chosen as a compromise between them. Among the Italian cardinals living outside the country, one of the most influential is Cardinal Batti, former nuncio to Poland. All speculation, however, is based on very slight data, because of the suddenness of Pope Benedict's death.

Receive Italian Minister
For the first time in history an Italian cabinet minister yesterday was received at the Vatican when Angelo Maafi, minister of agriculture went there to inquire about the condition of Pope Benedict.

Signor Maafi was cordially received by Mgr. Cremonesi and by the master of the chamber, Caccia-Dominioni, who invited him to enter. They retired to an apartment, where the minister had a long talk with Mgr. Pizzardo, papal undersecretary of state.

The minister expressed himself as highly pleased at the welcome accorded him by the Vatican officials.

King is Notified
The first person, outside of the immediate pontifical circle, to be informed of the pope's death was Premier Bonomi, who, in turn, communicated the news to the king and other high dignitaries of the state, as well as to the governors of the colonies. For the first time in the history of relations between the Italian government and the Vatican the government instructed that the flags be half masted on all government offices in observance of the death of the pontiff.

against the soviet government as well as for lives sacrificed and indirect damage to business, the prestige of the government and the business losses resulting from the blockade. There was a report at one time that the total amounts to nearly one hundred billion gold rubles, but there are indications that another policy may be followed because of the difficulties always met in international courts when attempts are made to prove indirect damages.

At any rate the bolshevik bill against the outside world will doubtless far over-balance all possible claims the outside powers may present on behalf of their governments, corporations and individuals.

PEDDLING MASTERPIECE

The Seventeenth or Eighteenth century author traded rather on the trustfulness of the public than does the new school, for he peddled his book before it was written, and sometimes spent the proceeds before he had completed half a dozen chapters. The only difference is that his peddling was particular rather than general; he went round the houses of the great and wealthy with his "plan," and the great and wealthy, generally in sufficient numbers, got rid of him by agreeing to have their names put down for a subscription. If they were very great or very wealthy they might expect a dedication thrown in, as it were, in which respect the modern peddler has an advantage, for no obligation is implied in the purchase of a copy of the book.—Manchester Guardian.

unless some parties desire a continuance of these low priced importations as a basis for raising tariff rates for selfish purposes."

Mr. Miles told the committee that the fair tariff league stood for the principle of "adequate protection to American industry and labor and is equally opposed to excessive rates that prohibit or unduly limit importation and encourage manufacturers to raise prices and increase the cost of living." He explained that he had been a manufacturer all his life and at one time was chairman of the tariff commission of the National Association of Manufacturers.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist, because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly prunes from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

FRAME STRUCTURE REPLACES ESKIMO CHURCH OF SNOW

Lights Went Out in Igloo Church Because of Lack of Oxygen

CHICAGO.—When the first Eskimo church was built inside the Arctic circle in Alaska, its lights went out, according to Bishop Peter T. Rowe, Episcopal bishop of Alaska, who is here in the interest of the Alaska Indians.

The snow roof dripped, too, and altogether the big igloo did not prove a good meeting place, Bishop Rowe added. So they built the first frame structure, above ground, on Alaska's northern shore.

"The Eskimos did not know how to use tools," he said, "and the missionary and I took two sets of these four in each, and showed them how, and altogether we built the church."

All along the northern coast of Alaska there are Eskimo villages to day, holding Episcopal services regularly every Sunday. Bishop Rowe reported.

"They do better than many of the congregations in the United States," he remarked. "The whole community turns out. No one stays away except for illness or accident. You can't see an Eskimo village from a little distance, and it is an odd thing on a Sunday morning, when the church bells ring, to see them all come out of the snow."

The Episcopal church has been working among the Eskimos so long that they are entirely familiar with its ritual and conduct services that solves when alone, the bishop said, adding that a number of villages had vested choirs.

Bishop Rowe began his labors in Alaska in the winter of 1895-6 before the great gold stampede and on his first trip camped on the site of Dawson, then without an inhabitant in each succeeding year he has made 25,000 miles through the country, more of it with dog teams. He observed here that his coldest weather was 73 degrees below zero, encountered on the Dahl river north of the Yukon. He goes back to Alaska next month.

CLASS IN CRAVATS

The streets' hawker was selling neckties by the public library while his capers watched for the sign of a binocular. He had to work fast. "This here scarf," he shouted, "makes a gay look dressable and you'd pay three bucks for it at any mawdrest's. I bring these over from Paris myself. The king of Paris wore one exactly like this at the grand ball given at the Buss de Bateau." A caper stepped up and bought one. "Ah," said the hawker, "Mr. Pierpont Morgan takes this one."—O. O. McIntyre, in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ROAD WORK CAN BE PUSHED AT LOWER COST--HAZELWOOD

Chairman of Highway Commission Speaker at Opening Session of State Road School

WISCONSIN LEADS IN HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION HE DECLARES

Few States Equal and None Excel Badger Program

MADISON.—This state will be able materially to reduce its expenditure for road building by cutting costs and still carry on the work in a manner that will sustain its leadership, John A. Hazelwood, chairman of the highway commission, said Monday in opening the eleventh annual road school.

Wisconsin is the "beacon light to all states of the union," in the matter of road construction, the speaker declared. Few states in the country have equalled, and none have excelled the good road work of this state, he said.

"There seems to be a demand for good roads everywhere," Mr. Hazelwood added, "but on the other hand there appears also to be very strong reaction against pushing road work as rapidly as it evidently has been done in the past year."

"We find that the income tax and the sur-tax collected furnish us no relief from the ever increasing taxes thrust upon our people. This condition rightly stimulates public sentiment against a too rapid expenditure of money for public purposes."

"During the last year Wisconsin constructed nearly 400 miles of concrete road and over 1,000 miles of gravel roads. This year the counties are pressing the highway commission for a program even greater than the program of last year."

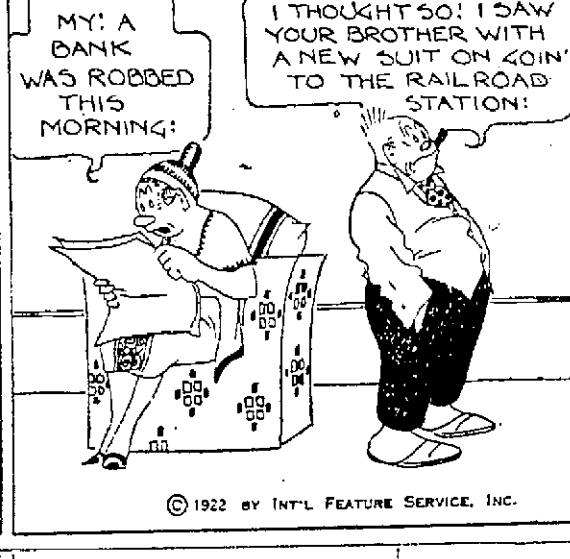

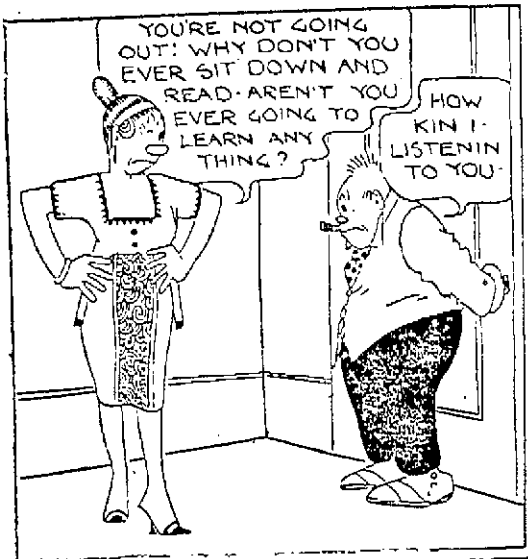

Mr. Hazelwood recommended that the legislature enact a law requiring that drivers of automobiles be licensed in order to ensure their ability to operate a machine. He pointed out that "careful surveillance by proper officials seems to be the only way to help minimize accident on the roads which increase with the improvement of highways."

"Wisconsin should not delay much longer the matter of prohibiting Tom Dick and Harry from going to the wheel of an automobile and jeopardizing the lives of people."

"Our taxpayers have liberally provided much money for road construction and maintenance. It is up to them who have charge of the plans and work to see that the best results are obtained. Waste and extravagance can never be justified anywhere, especially in public service."

"Some charge that contracts were let last year for exorbitant prices to contractors. This year we shall try to keep all work of the highway commission above suspicion. If possible, we need to go about the work carefully and cautiously and painstakingly."

BRINGING UP FATHER

BADGER DEFEAT LAID TO LACK OF PROFICIENCY IN SHOOTING FIELD BASKETS

BY BOB DUNN

The pitiable inability of the Badgers to toss field baskets at last cost them a defeat and at the hands of the Gophers, 17 to 15, in spite of Wisconsin's excellent floor work. The loss will probably cost them the conference championship. Last year Wisconsin lost four conference titles and in spite of this fact, tied for Big Ten honors but the situation was an unusual one.

Wisconsin excelled the northerners in their passing attack but were not nearly as adept at the shooting game. Every opportunity at a shot was capitalized by Minnesota while Wisconsin attempts time after time rolled around the rim.

The Badger-Gopher tilt on Saturday night was one of the most strenuous witnessed at Madison in past years. Each five put up a fast, hard-fought game every minute, the fighting tactics of both teams bringing forth much favorable comment from the crowded house which was sold out on Thursday preceding the contest.

Minnesota presented a team that was entirely new to Cardinal basketball fans and one that was anything but typical of the northern institution. Instead of a five of harden giants, Minnesota presented a lineup that man for man was lighter than the light Badger outfit but speed and fight offset this handicap.

The fact that an athletic revival is taking place at Minnesota and that the athletic authorities there are considering putting the ban on "Coach 'Doc' Cooke" seemed to reflect itself in the Gopher basketball team which fought tooth and nail to keep its season's record in perfect shape.

Wisconsin fought equally gamely but the men seemed unable to locate the hoop. Even Glen Taylor, who scored 23 of Wisconsin's 15 points, seemed to lack his usual accuracy and repeatedly his shots fell far short of the backboard. The Badgers, meeting with a strong defensive aggregation, attempted more long shots than ordinary but no one of these was good for points.

Doc Cooke's five played no unusual game but relied on old tactics that brought his team a win. The Gophers passed the ball under their own basket when it was in their possession, aiming to draw in the Wisconsin defense, and then shot it to one of their men near the basket who shot and many times successfully. Scoring remained near his own basket, much of the time waiting for the ball from his teammates.

Because of the even match between the teams on Saturday was as exciting as any of the year. At Referee Schoemaker's opening whistle, Wisconsin seemed headed straight for victory. Taylor started by putting in a free throw and followed with a field goal and another free throw before a technical by Williams gave the Gophers their first opportunity to score.

The battle continued even during the entire first half after a short Gopher spurt and the count at the rest period stood deadlocked, with 7 points registered by each team.

The fast clip of the opening period continued throughout the second half with the Gophers forging into a big lead at the opening of the half. Two baskets by Severingston and another by Kearney put the count up to 15 to 8 and it looked like a bad trimming for Wisconsin.

With four minutes to play and Hultkamp removed from the Gopher lineup with four personal fouls, Coach Menzies sent in Gaze to force the battle when the northerners stalled for time.

Within ten seconds after the change, Taylor dribbled under the basket and scored. Within another ten seconds Gaze repeated, bringing the score 17 to 15, with another basket needed to tie the count.

The crowd went wild and the teams battled furiously but no Badger was able to make the necessary grade. Two shots were missed by narrow margins. The ball was in Wisconsin's possession most of the time during the final rally but the gun cut off Badger hopes for a last minute win.

Unless a mid-season slump overtakes the veteran Purdue aggregation, indications are that with but a nine game schedule, the Badgers will dispute conference honors with any other team that may come through with a perfect record. The defeat of Iowa by Purdue, 36 to 22, on Saturday night showed that the Purdue aggregation has the stuff. The Badgers started out last season with the same prospects but were defeated repeatedly before the end of the year and this season are determined to run according to the dope.

While the Minnesota win over Wisconsin's hopes for another Big Ten championship, it did not eliminate the Badgers who are not forgetting the fact that they lost the first game to Northwestern last year by one point and still came back and divided leading laurels.

ADD NINE HUNDRED THOUSAND TO TAX ROLLS OF STATE

Upwards of Eleven Thousand Income Tax Returns for 1921 Corrected

MADISON, Wis.—As result of correcting 1,197 income tax returns during the calendar year 1921 the state tax commission on Monday announced that $889,000 had been added to the assessment rolls and that $766,877.81 will be added to the state treasury in actual taxes to be collected this month.

"As result of correcting the 1,197 income tax returns," says the tax commission official report, "the income was increased over the amount reported by the taxpayer in 1,130 cases, while in 67 cases the income was reduced. The books of 34 corporations were examined by field auditors the year. In every instance additional income for one or more years between 1917 and 1920 inclusive was discovered, while in 17 cases the income was decreased for one or more years."

The net increase in income tax assessments for the four-year period covered by the field and office audit last year was $4,656,400 by field audit and $4,243,220 by office audit, giving the total increase assessment of $8,899,620. In actual taxes that will be collected as result of these audits, $522,301 comes into the state treasury under the head of income taxes.

$81846 is listed under the Soldiers' Educational Surplus, $120,377 under the Straight Soldier Bonus Surplus, and $42,333 for the Teachers' Retirement Fund Surplus. This gives the total of $766,877.81 that will be collected this month at a cost to state of roughly $30,000 for the salaries and expenses of the auditors.

Under the statutes, the tax commission is not allowed to investigate nor correct returns back of the last three years. This means that the commission can no longer investigate returns for 1917 and their work for this year will be to correct returns for 1918 to 1921 inclusive. Tabulations of the corrected returns shows that the greatest corrections were made in the return for the year 1918 when there was added to the assessment rolls this year to cover that deficit $96,304 for income tax, $18,925 for the Soldier Educational Bonus, and $94,990 for the Straight Soldier Bonus. As result of a special appropriation made last month to continue this work during this year it is expected that perhaps $1,000,000 will be added to the state treasury through the continued corrections of the income tax reports by individuals and corporations.

BOY CARRIES AGED GRANDFATHER FROM BURNING APARTMENT

MADISON, Wis.—Fire Sunday night totally destroyed the Marburg apartments here, causing a loss estimated at $125,000. The ruins continued to burn Monday. Eight families were driven from their homes by the blaze, which was discovered in the basement shortly after eight o'clock. It had gained such headway before the fire department arrived that it was impossible to save the structure.

With smoke the upper part of the building, Nat. Crumpton, 17-year-old high school student, went to the third floor and carried E. E. Griffith, his 84-year-old grandfather, to safety.

He was destitute and jealous, he told the police, and could not find employment, and for these reasons had committed the crime.

A short time before Tierny's arrest the police had obtained his description and had just sent out word to arrest him on sight, when he walked into the station and asked for lodging for the night. The police sergeant glanced at the man.

"Why, you're Patrick Tierny, aren't you?"

"Yes, that's me," Tierny replied, the police said. "I killed my wife and baby. Please kill me."

Then he collapsed.

Speaking without apparent emotion, Tierny told of meeting his wife when he was a chemist with the army at Presidio, Calif., during the war. Objection to their marriage, he said, caused them to move to Chicago, where they lived well enough until he lost his job. For two days, he said, he had nothing to eat. With his last eighty cents he purchased a hatchet.

After killing his wife and baby, he said, he wandered about the streets trying to get enough money to purchase poison with which he could take his own life. Failing in this, he gave himself up.
